ANIMALS OF AGRICULTURE

Brochure created by Ashleigh Moore, Year 12
The Animals of Agriculture

At Gawler High School, we have an extensive list of animals in our Agriculture area. Some of these animals are being shown in this year’s Gawler Show. Mrs. Adela King is the Agriculture and Science coordinator and she is helped extensively by; Mr Bob Woodbury and also by Mr. Mark O’Callaghan to ensure the animals are kept in fantastic conditions.

Some very lucky students from Gawler High also have the opportunity to help feed and clean the animals and some even luckier students are nominated to show the animals in the Gawler Show.

Down on the Farm...

There are Rabbits, both adults and kittens. They are due to be shown later this month in the show. There are a number of breeds here at Gawler High. All of the rabbits are well behaved and are able to be held without getting scratched.

Along with the rabbits there are chickens and bantams. Unlike the rabbits, they aren’t very friendly but they don’t attack. Both the chickens and bantams are bred to produce eggs that are then used throughout classes to see how eggs grow and develop. Occasionally when there is an overwhelming amount of chicks born, students are chosen to take these chickens home to raise them.

Down on the Farm...

We currently have 3 steers, a Poll Hereford, a Murray Grey and an Angus. All three are competing in this year’s Gawler Show and are being shown by students. They are relatively calm and are very happy to be brushed.

Gawler High School also has several sheep, their wool will also be judged at this year’s show. To look after the sheep we have an alpaca. Alpacas are well known to be very protective of sheep, so he is friendly as long as the sheep aren’t in danger.
